In the event of an error or omission in the course of administering the Plan on behalf of the employer and participating employees, TASC will notify and remedy the error or omission in a reasonable period following the error or omission. The employer and employees agree to TASC's procedures for correcting including by not limited to payroll reduction. An error by the employer or TASC does not constitute an assumption of liability for the amount of the error.

Eligible Employees

The employer must establish the eligibility requirements in order for employees to participate in the Plan and may select up to the maximum listed or instead select lower requirements for participation. The ability to select a lower requirement applies to any of the regulations for participation in the Plan. Many of the regulations listed may exclude an employee from participating in the Plan. If you choose to not select any exclusions, all employees will be eligible for participation. Any excludable options left blank will also be considered as being included.

Highly Compensated Employees

Section 125 of the Internal Revenue Code requires that Cafeteria Plans be offered on a non-discriminatory basis. In assuring compliance, the Internal Revenue Code does not provide one simple test. Section 125 has its own non-discrimination test, just as the individual benefits (Section 105, Section 129 and Section 79) have separate tests that must be met. The complication of this aspect of a Cafeteria Plan stems from the uncertainty of each test's application. Although the various tests tend to be subjective in relation to each other, you will find the concept of fairness is consistent throughout.

Because of the uncertainty, FlexSystem has created a test which considers the similarities of all tests. Since the Internal Revenue Service has not provided much guidance, administrators are left to define a common ground in meeting the non-discrimination requirements. In doing this, it is first necessary to define who is highly compensated. After this determination has been made, it is necessary to apply the concentration test which states that those deemed highly compensated may contribute no more than 33% of total contributions made by the non-highly compensated employees. Those who are defined as highly compensated include:

1. Any officer.
2. Any individual owning 5% or more of the corporation.
3. Any employee earning in excess of $90,000 (2002 figures) and in the top paid group.
4. Any dependent of an employee meeting the above criteria.

FlexSystem will perform non-discrimination tests for you. However, employers should consider the concentration test when highly compensated employees are making their Plan elections. They may be asked to provide additional information for accurate testing. The employer will be notified of the results.
